

1675 Pieroth Blue

Germany

Art. Nr. 58784

Wine Description

The 1675 Pieroth Blue 2022 is an alluring and fine off-dry white wine from the Nahe region of Germany. An aromatic bouquet greets the nose with luscious primary notes of ripe apricot and delicate rose, evoking a garden in early bloom. As the wine opens, it reveals intriguing secondary aromas of green pepper and a hint of nutmeg, adding complexity and depth to its profile.

In the mouth, the wine exudes a vibrancy that is characteristic of the Nahe region's terroir, known for delivering wines with pronounced minerality and fresh acidity. The 1675 manages to strike a delightful balance between its residual sweetness and its vibrant acidity, creating a harmonious and refined drinking experience that is both refreshing and memorable.

Region Description

This wine from the Nahe Valley in Germany combines traditional winemaking craftsmanship with modern design. The blue bottle colour is a historical characteristic of wines from this region and is closely tied to the history of the Pieroth family, who have been making wines here since 1675.

This cuvée is a meticulously crafted blend that showcases the best characteristics of white grape varieties. The term 'Cuvée Weiß' refers to a white wine blend where the winemaker skillfully selects various grape types to achieve a harmoniously balanced composition. In this particular bottle, the result is an elegant dance of flavours and aromas that are both lively and poised.

Food Pairing:

Whether enjoyed alone as a sophisticated aperitif or as a complement to a meal, this wine is sure to delight enthusiasts and casual drinkers alike with its charming interplay of fruit, florals, and spice.
